Experience

Cinema Directing, 2004 - present

Directorial work ranging from narrative to documentary to animation to commercial. As owner and Chief Creative of upright monkey, inc. (incorporated in 2006), partnering with production companies to create and produce entertainment, infotainment and advertising content. Collaborating with actors, directors of photography, writers, editors, producers, assistant directors and animators to execute vision, as well as leading and coordinating all department heads. Collaborating with clients to effectively and artistically convey brand identity and messaging to their audiences. Under contract for nearly five years with the Emmy Award-winning production company, Digital Kitchen, working as a director, writer and/or creative director for 55 episodes of a national movie pre-show, seen by an average of 47 million people on 10,000 screens per month. Created cinematic content for union theatrical productions — conceiving, designing, shooting and editing all pieces. Full credits and clips available at www.uprightmonkey.net.

Stage Directing, 1989 - present

Over 20 full professional productions — including many world premieres — and nearly 30 fully staged professional theatrical readings in Chicago, regional and university theatres.

Collaborating with actors and design teams to execute vision, as well as working with artistic directors and stage managers to uphold artistic integrity throughout the run of the show.

Working with playwrights to develop scripts and adapting classic scripts for production.

Acclaimed productions ranging from Shakespeare to revivals of classic and contemporary American and Irish plays, as well as the premieres including According to Mark (a one man, word-for-word theatricalization of the King James Version of the Book of Mark), Kill Me (a non-linear psychological horror play) and Singer and Saw (a neo-vaudevillean revue, featuring a saw-playing clown and an mezzo soprano). Served as Artistic Director for The Shakespeare Project of Chicago — directing, adapting, planning seasons, casting, hiring outside directors and working with the board on all financial matters — for eight seasons (2001-2009), during which time audiences increased 400% and the company annually operated in the black.

Currently serving as Producing Director for Lakeside Shakespeare Theatre, while also running the Acting Apprenticeship program.

Shining City — Irish Theatre of Chicago

“For all its bleakness, McPherson and Jeff Christian's production are more concerned with the personal realizations and truths that can only be discovered after everything is lost. Ensemble-wide, the performances are patient, raw and rewarding.” (Time Out Chicago)

The Skin of Our Teeth — The Artistic Home:

“Jeff Christian's cunning and sometimes breathtaking production...dazzles. Christian's cast builds the tension and sorrow bit by masterful bit, moving nearly seamlessly from the first act's absurdity (complete with baby dinosaur and wooly mammoth) to the bleak blasted world left after global warfare.” (Chicago Tribune)

A Whistle in the Dark — Seanachai Theatre Company

“Seanachai Theatre Company's revival, directed by Jeff Christian, is so explosive it's a wonder that the walls of the downstairs studio at Victory Gardens are still intact. Astoundingly powerful.” (Chicago Tribune)

Proof — New American Theater

“Director Jeff Christian deserves kudos for the excellent ensemble and setting the right pace and tone to accentuate the many aspects of “Proof” without allowing anything to override.” (Rockford Register Star)

Mojo Mickybo — Seanachai Theatre Company

“In Jeff Christian's brisk, athletic staging for Seanachai Theatre Company, Robert Kauzlaric and Dan Waller play not only the boys but everyone else in their world -- troubled parents, eccentric shopkeepers, neighborhood thugs. Their characterizations are crisp, their accents flawless, their depiction of boyhood boisterous, touching, and true.” (Chicago Reader)

Driving Miss Daisy — New American Theater

“Everything from Jeff Christian’s unencumbered staging to Robert Durhams’s stylized representational set to the straightforward sensitivity of the three-member cast is neither more – nor less – than it needs to be. It is simply marvelous.” (Rockford Register Star)

Kill Me (world premiere) — WildClaw Theatre

“Killer -- especially in Jeff Christian’s nicely orchestrated, cleverly designed staging.” (Chicago Reader)

Stage Acting, 1988 - present

Over 60 professional productions in Chicago and regional theatres throughout the country, ranging from classical to new works. Roles include Shakespeare's Richard III, Brutus, Malvolio, Claudius, Macduff, Falstaff and Proteus, as well as Joe Pitt in Angels in America, Nick in Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf, Seumas in The Shadow of a Gunman and the Jackson Pollock-inspired lead character in Tennessee Williams' The Day on Which a Man Dies (in Chicago, East Hampton and Provincetown).

The Day on Which a Man Dies — The Tennessee Williams Festival

"The elegant and powerful Jennie Moreau as the Woman and the crazed Neanderthal of an artist Jeff Christian, deliver meticulously crafted and blazingly honest performances that cry, 'acting should be like this.'" (New City)

Lay Me Down Softly — Seanachai Theatre Company

"And the actors — each of them pure perfection, but also a model of ensemble synergy — not only live in the immediate moment of their characters' lives, but magically suggest the years of rage, disappointment, frustration and loss that have made them who they are. At its center is Theo (Jeff Christian), a big, volatile, self-made guy." (Chicago Sun-Times)

Angels in America — The Journeymen

"Its production of 'Angels in America' has carved out a distinctive place in Chicago theater history... All of the ensemble members focus on their characters' eloquent search for identity. Jeff Christian gives Joe just the right degree of emotional discomfort." (Chicago Sun-Times)

The Weir — Seanachai Theatre Company

"The ensemble is on top of a tough script filled with demanding monologues. The actors goose the humor with nice, natural touches; Christian's awkward pauses and over-long eye contact are genius." (New City)

The Laramie Project — Madison Repertory Theatre

"The Rep's show is a theatrical miracle. Despite the show's complexity, not one of the performers misses a beat. Rep veterans Jeff Christian, C. Michael Wright and Jim Devita all strike solid, sustainable chords in their various roles." (The Capital Times)

The Shadow of a Gunman — Seanachai Theatre Company

"I was impressed with Christian's shambling, comic, tragic, completely truthful performance." (WBEZ, Dueling Critics)

Journey's End — Seanachai Theatre Company

“...featuring a richly believable and touching Jeff Christian.” (Chicago Sun-Times)
